Shooting Bares Love Triangle

Biting Cold Grips Many States

JOLIET, ILL., March 19.—(By the United Press)—Interrogation of Cecil Hopkins by police today brought to light an alleged love triangle involving the son of the wealthiest Joliet residents, the wife of a night worker in a steel mill and her husband.

Hopkins was found in his father's real estate office, probably fatally shot.

Edward McCarthy, a night worker in the steel mills here, admitted the shooting, the police said.

McCarthy's wife, Helen, it was said, was found hysterical in the office with the two men when authorities arrived.

McCarthy told authorities he discovered young Hopkins in the office alone in the office in one of the largest buildings in Joliet at 11:00 p. m.

"For some time I had suspected the friendship between Hopkins and my wife. Instead of going to work as usual, I watched the restaurant where she is employed. She went to Hopkins' office. I saw the figures of my wife and Hopkins silhouetted through the heavy glass door. I knocked on the door and the lights were switched out. Then I broke through the door and Hopkins tried to get away and I shot him and held my wife till the police arrived.

Mrs. Hopkins was held as witness. No charges have been preferred against McCarthy pending the outcome of Hopkins' wound.

Ex-Kaiser And Bride Are Living A Simple And Happy Life At Doorn Castle

(By Ferdinand John Dooen, Holland, March 19.—(By the United Press)—The family life of the former German kaiser and his kaiserin at Doorn Castle is simple and happy. The kaiserin, better known as the Princess Hermine, made that emphatically clear in an exclusive interview with the United Press. The interview was given in the quiet miniature castle that is the residence of the court chamberlain. She dispensed emphatically all the chatter that has spread worldwide that she is leaving Wilhelm, or going to Corfu. She made it plain that the ex-emperor and herself are pursuing in happiness and only the simple life of studious folks here in this picturesque out of the way corner of the world. Explaining a forthcoming trip to Germany, the kaiserin said:

"At the end of this month I am going to Silesia. You can believe me it is hard for me to leave the emperor alone. But I am also a mother, and the interests of my children demand my presence in Germany twice a year. These times are naturally so chosen that they coincide in spring and autumn with the vacations of my oldest sons who are at school in Germany. Naturally these journeys are previously arranged."

The three of her youngest children played outside the castle here. Continuing, the kaiserin said:

"My children quickly developed confidence in the kaiser, and a liking for him. On his part he treats them with fatherly tenderness. When my oldest boys are here they help the emperor to chop wood. The emperor continues this occupation because, since childhood, he has been accusomed to plenty of exercise. Wilhelm finds it a substitute for sport with which to save his physical elasticity. He also likes to help about the park and garden."

Then Hermine gave a glimpse of life within the castle of herself and the former war lord by the fireside of an evening pursuing diligently an intellectual life.

"The emperor is actively interested in all branches of culture," she said. "Just at present he is busy on archaeological studies and notes for a booklet he is preparing, regarding Greek antiquities. The emperor is proceeding earnestly with meteorological studies and observations. He is strongly occupied too with theological studies. Only yesterday he sent a letter to Pastor Vogel at Potsdam in which he discussed theological problems. Above all, the kaiser follows politics, in which he naturally has the greatest interest. We have introduced a sort of division of labor in view of the flood of publications. Each of us reads a portion of the books. When we find one of special interest we read them together and compare views. We read with special thoroughness whatever we find written about the kaiser and his personality. Indeed we do not merely read the favorable reports either."

The princess smiled as she said that some of the criticisms caused them much amusement.

CAPITALIST SYSTEM ATTACKED

LONDON, March 19.—(By the Associated Press)—A resolution is to be offered soon in the house of commons by Philip Snowden, laborite, declaring that future legislation should be directed towards "gradual suppression of the capitalist system."

The Socialists announce their intention of bringing their whole strength to the support of this resolution. The unionists, Asquithian liberals and Georgian liberals intend submitting amendments.

Actress Named

NEW YORK, March 19.—(By the Associated Press)—Lorna Ambler, an Australian actress, today was named as the co-respondent in the divorce suit which Geraldine Farrar is pressing against her actor husband, Lou Tellegen.

Miss Ambler's name was brought into the case by Samuel Undermyer, counsel for the diva in examination of witnesses before Referee Thomas Mahoney.

Miss Ambler was described as 25 years old and strikingly beautiful. She spoke with a decidedly English accent, but in a pleasing tone, witnesses declared.

Witnesses testified to a summer alleged to have been spent by Tellegen and Miss Ambler at Long Beach, followed by love making in an ordinary New York rooming house, nightly walks through the Ghetto and long late-night strolls at midnight.

W. F. Hevers testified that late in June, 1921, he rented a bungalow at Long Beach to a man named Frank, said to be Tellegen's secretary. Frank he said spent several days there, and then Tellegen, whose identity then was unknown, to Hevers, arrived with a woman of striking appearance.

Hevers identified a photograph of Tellegen's alleged bungalow mate, and then described how the couple had bathed, fished and boated together for a month at the seashore.

In August, 1921, the plaintiff's counsel sought to show the scene shifted to a rooming house on West 37th street, New York City, and for two months "the great lover" had to content himself with a shadowy existence.

Norman Fitzsimmons, a private detective, was placed on the stand at this point and testified that in August Miss Ambler went to live in a studio apartment in this city while the next month Tellegen opened an engagement as the leading man in "Don Juan" at the Garrick Theatre. At that time Fitzsimmons declared Tellegen was friendly with another woman mentioned in testimony only as "T," taking her to her home on Riverside Drive each night and kiss-

U. S. Insists On Collecting Bill

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright 1923 By The Portsmouth Times)
MILWAUKEE, Fla., Mar. 19.—President Harding has little time approving Secretary of State Hughes' recommendation as to the reply of the United States government to the proposals of the allies concerning the payment of the American army of occupation on the Rhine.

The secretary communicated all the facts to Mr. Harding here—it was the first official act of importing her good-night.

After that Fitzsimmons continued, Tellegen frequently would return to the rooming house on West 37th street, where Miss Ambler then was living, meeting the actress in the vestibule and embracing her.

The Essence of Religion

"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and thy neighbor as thyself." Mark 12:30, 31.

"The hearts of men must be cultivated with all diligence for out of the heart are the moving forces of the world."

MENTATION: The Christian's daily life is not governed by servile submission to a higher power, but is happy through obedience dictated by love. Not through fear, but through affection flows the stream of life of the child of God.

ANCE on the vacation trip—and briefly outlined the course that the thought should be taken. Already the reply has been dispatched to Paris along the lines of Mr. Hughes' recommendations which was that the allied proposal be rejected.

There is little doubt that the procedure of the allies in this matter has not helped their efforts to secure closer cooperation of America in the affairs of Europe. The impression the allied representatives have made has been far from pleasing because MOSCOW, March 19.—(By the Associated Press)—Moscow newspapers display a New York dispatch saying it is officially understood that Secretary Hoover acting upon reports from his agents here recommends recognition of the Soviet government while Secretary Hughes still opposes such a step.

Schwensberg Dismissed

At a hearing before Squire George S. Morgan Monday on a charge of furnishing intoxicating liquor, John Schwensberg, of Front street, was dismissed by the magistrate for lack of evidence to support the complaint, which grew out of the defendant's recent arrest on a charge of possession of liquor to which he admitted guilt.

Complaint Dismissed

Miss Nora Noel, of Nile township, was before Squire Morgan Monday to answer to a charge of cutting with intent to wound Charles Huston during some trouble Saturday, but after hearing from both sides the magistrate dismissed the complaint.

trouble grew out of Huston accusing the defendant of causing his arrest a few days ago for violating the dry laws in connection with the operation of a still on a shantytown at the mouth of Turkey Creek. During the altercation, in which it was in-she acted in her proper defense. The trouble occurred at the home of the woman's father, Scott Noel at Turkey Creek.

Your Health is at Stake if You Suffer from Constipation!

Every man, woman and child who has constipation or constipation symptoms should leave no stone unturned to get instant relief! Keep away from the dangers of pills and cathartics, which are almost as much to be dreaded as constipation itself. Your physician will recommend Kellogg's Bran because it is ALL BRAN—and it is Kellogg's Bran that will give permanent relief if eaten regularly.

Most cases of Bright's and diabetes can be traced to constipation; in its milder form constipation is responsible for sick headache, nausea, pimples, sour breath, etc. And, we say right here—and guarantee what we say—that Kellogg's Bran, if eaten regularly, will give you permanent relief.

Kellogg's Bran is wonderful as a food as well as wonderful as a natural means of relieving constipation.

Kellogg's Bran contains important mineral salts; it contains elements that are necessary in making bone, tissue and blood—yet, it acts as a sweeper, cleanser and purifier.

Eat Kellogg's Bran as a cereal.
You'll enjoy its nut-like flavor. Or, sprinkle it on or mix it with hot or cold cereals. Many like it cooked with hot cereals. Two tablespoonfuls of bran should be added in each instance. You have missed much not to have eaten Kellogg's Bran made into muffins, raisin bread or many other bakery batches. Recipes on every package. Prominent hotels, restaurants and clubs serve Kellogg's Bran in individual packages. All grocers sell Kellogg's Bran.

"Dead Spots" Between Cities

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(By scientists are trying to determine the cause of "dead spots" between a number of cities in the United States which form almost impenetrable

Simple Phosphate Real Builder of Strength and Nerve Force Says New York Physician barrier to the direct exchange of radio messages. The most pernicious of these appears to be between Washington and Baltimore. To get a message to this point, less than forty miles distant, Washington senders are using Chicago and other comparatively remote cities as relay points. The pleasures of radio conveyance are almost completely lost between the two cities.

Dr. J. H. Dellinger, chief of the radio division of the bureau of standards who is trying to fathom the mystery, reports that a similar difficulty exists between Pittsburgh and Cleveland, Hartford and Boston and Providence and Boston. The most plausible theory now advanced, Dr.
Dellinger says, is the existence of a radio activity in these dead spots which so affects certain layers of the air as to render transmission of radio waves impossible.

Held For Murdering Son

CLEVELAND, O., March 19.—(By the Associated Press)—Martin Pri-ver, 33, was charged with murder early today, following the slaying of his son, William, 23, in the kitchen of the family home late last night while his wife, from whom he had been separated for two weeks, looked on.

Heved him to be in Michigan. Martin Jr., who with his mother and his brother was in the kitchen, witnessed the shooting. When he reappeared Sunday they asked him what he was doing here. He told me it was none of my business, Mrs. Pri-ver said. His voice attracted William from upstairs. When he came down they began to argue, then clinched. "Father had a gun in his hand. It was fired once. William fell, shot above the heart," Mrs. Pri-ver told the police.

Skin Ablaze with Eczema

Constant Itching Almost Unbearable!

We know there is one thing that stops eczema, and that is more red-blooded cells! S. S. S. builds them by the millions! You can increase your red-blood cells to the point where it is practically impossible for eczema to exist.

exist. We know that as blood-cells increase in number, blood impurities vanish! We also know that night follows day. Both are facts! But have you, eczema sufferers, ever actually taken advantage of this wonderful fact? Thousands just like you have never thought about it! Skin eruptions, eczema with all its fiery, skin-digging torture and its soul-tearing, unrelenting itching, pimples, blackheads and boils, they all pack up and go, when the life of blood-cells begins to roll in! Blood-cells are the fighting-guards of nature! S. S. S. builds them by the millions! It has been doing it since 1892! S. S. S. is one of the greatest blood-cell builders, blood-cleaners and body-builders known to us mortals! When you put these facts together,—then to continue to have eczema and skin eruptions looks more like a sin than a disease. Mrs. Arthur M. Smith, Pearl St., Newark, Ohio, writes: "My little girl had a very bad case of eczema. She began taking S. S. S. and in a few days the itching stopped. I told my friends what a good medicine it is. I cannot talk too much about it, for I know it is O. K."

Here is your opportunity. S. S. S. contains only vegetable medicinal ingredients. Because S. S. S. does build red-blood-cells, it cures rheumatism, builds firm flesh, fills out yellow cheeks, beautifies the complexion, builds you up when you are run-down. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores, in two sizes. The larger size bottle is the more economical.

The American government has felt that if ever a claim was written down in black and white without the slightest chance of misunderstanding the contract was the one providing for payment of the expenses of American troops on the Rhine. This was to have been a prior payment above reparations or any other receipts from Germany.

What American officials particularly do not like is that the allies after collecting money from Germany for the expenses of Rhine armies, have failed to give America her share of their own initiative but have suggested the claim be listed and paid later and that also a portion of the claim be reduced by crediting to the same account the selling price of all German ships seized by America during the war.

While some reports have indicated that this latter item would amount only to about fifteen or sixteen million dollars and would therefore be a small part of the total of two hundred and fifty millions owed America for the Rhine army expenses, there is a suspicion that the allies really wanted to multiply the number of German ships seized by America by the sale price per ton during the war, which would have brought the total up to a considerable sum. The sale price then was about $200 per ton as compared with $53 per ton today.

Beclouds the Real Issue

Not only did the American government decline to consider this method of calculation because it meant the appointment of an appraisal board and interminable negotiations, but it beclouded the real issue, namely, the payment of the expenses of the Rhine army out of the funds received apart from general reparations. The United States made no claim for general reparations, and does not like the idea of crediting to reparations account something for which payment is expressly provided for under another section altogether of the treaties and armistice agreements.

There is an importance to this dispute, however, which in the eyes of the United States government transcends the amount of dollars and cents involved. Two hundred and fifty million dollars is a relatively small sum compared to the amounts which the allies have been trying to collect from Germany yet it is the principle underlying the controversy which may have far reaching effects on the future of American policy. All powers have stated in a formal notice that they recognized the equity of the American claim, but they never made provisions for payment, although they always kept on insisting that the American army continue to stay on the Rhine. It is true that the sums received by the allies have been disbursed already but that is why the American government feels even more vehemently because its interests have been ignored by the allies. It's a good deal like the situation that would exist between two men who had agreed that one would get a certain share and the other would get the remainder of a debt when paid by a third party and if one of the men went ahead and spent the other man's share without so much as telling him about it until the money was spent and then began to dispute as to how it should be paid to the first creditor.

The president is not worrying about the handling of the controversy as he has full faith in the secretary of state but the latter has felt the matter was of sufficient importance to advise the chief executive and get his formal approval to every step taken.

Belated Cold Wave Grips City; Temperature Drops 46 Degrees

B-r-r-r!
Arriving a trifle late, but none the less severe, Portsmouth Monday was in the grip of an exceptionally cold wave for March.

From 3 p. m. Sunday to 12:30 p. m. Monday morning, the mercury dropped 46 degrees, as the maximum reading Sunday was 66, according to Weather Observer Dr. H. A. Schirman and at 12:30 this afternoon the temperature registered 20 above and apparently was going lower.

Sunday was an ideal spring day, warm and balmy, and heavy wraps were cast aside. In less than 24 hours the city was gripped by a severe cold wave and a sharp, bone-chilling wind was sweeping the city.

The cold spell is expected to give way in time to permit spring to arrive in a genteel manner at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday, the hour for the seasonal change from winter to spring.

Meeting Is Called Off

Owing to the death of Charles, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Anderson of Fifth street, who passed away Sunday, the meeting of the Exchange Club scheduled for Tuesday night has been called off, Mr. Anderson being a member of this organization.

Have Moved To Steubenville
Byron Prediger and family, former residents of this city, who have been residing in Massillon, have moved to Steubenville recently, where Mr. Prediger has secured employment as superintendent of the jobbing mills in the big steel plant at that place. His many Portsmouth friends will be glad to learn that he is prospering and likes his new position, which is a very responsible one. Mr. A. J. McFarland, also a former resident here, is employed in the same plant.

Card Of Thanks
We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to our friends and neighbors for the sympathy shown us in the death of our beloved brother, George Brown; also for the beautiful floral pieces which were sent; also Father Goebel for his comforting words and Undertaker Pfeiffer for the services he rendered, and the pallbearers and Mrs. George Lauder for her singing.

Suit Will Bare Secrets

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., March 19.—(By the Associated Press)—A suit which attorneys for either side say will delve to the very foundations of the House of David religious colony at Benton Harbor, was begun in United States district court here today. The action is that of John W. Hansell and wife, of Nashville, Tenn., instituted to collect the sum of $8,000 from Benjamin Parnell, head of the colony. The plaintiffs claim that sum is due them from property turned over to the organization when they joined it and for labor performed by Hansell, his wife and six children, while they were members. Hansell and his wife, the bill of complaint, sets forth, were expelled from the organization.

Defense attorney says the expulsion followed alleged attempts on the part of Hansell to organize a revolt in the colony against the leadership of Parnell.

Hansell and his wife allege that fraud was practiced upon them when they joined the organization, declaring they were led to believe the colony was of a religious nature only.

They assert they discovered the House of David engaged in various commercial activities, in Benton Harbor. The defense will contend, it was announced by attorneys that the colony was solely a religious organization.

Parnell contends the Hansell suit can be decided only by the ecclesiastical court of the association at Benton Harbor.

The suit was filed a year ago in Cincinnati before Federal Judge Peck. Resignation of that jurist and various motions delayed start of the case.

Johnson Doesn't Want to Visit FRANCE—Hiram W. Johnson on reaching Cherbourg says he has no advice to offer France and has no desire to visit Germany.

Object To Cutting Bill

PARIS, March 19.—(By the Associated Press)—A refusal by the United States to accept reduction of its bill for the expenses of the American army of occupation by the value of the German ships seized in American ports was presented today to the allied representatives in conference here on the reimbursement question by Eliot Wadsworth, assistant secretary of the treasury.

Reimbursement of the $255,000,000 expense in twelve annual installments out of possible German reparations payments which the allies proposed, is accepted in principle, it was stated, but Mr. Wadsworth made it plain the American view was that the bill should be paid and that it was not the concern of the United States whether it was met out of German payments or otherwise.

The allied representatives in the face of this rejection of their proposal, presented last week and afterwards submitted to Washington, called a separate meeting for tomorrow at which they will try to evolve, another proposition which will be

Use Natural Gas Only Where It Does Useful Work

Soot on heating surfaces will prevent transfer of heat. Heating surfaces should be kept clean and if soot is deposited, the cause should be found and corrected. Scale or sediment inside of heating surfaces will also prevent transfer of heat.

Heaters should be drained frequently. Remember that burners should be clean to give best results and should also be adjusted to give short blue flames at all times. Yellow flames deposit soot. If the tips of the flames are too low, the transfer of heat is not efficient.

If the utensil is placed low on the flames so that it touches the pale blue parts, poisonous gases are produced. The best results are obtained when the outer parts of the flame touch the utensil and spread out slightly.

The Shopmen's Strike

On July 1st, following a decision of the United States Labor Board making reduction of from seven to nine cents per bag in the wages of the shopmen, which, after this reduction ranged from 64.4 cents to 70.1 cents per hour, a general strike of shopmen was called in response to which practically all of your Company's shopmen left the Company's service. The places of these men were gradually filled, partly from the ranks of the strikers, but more largely by new men, and the situation at the close of the year was close to normal. Now shop organizations, composed of your company's own employees, have been formed, with which agreements have been made, and it is confidently believed that increased efficiency and more harmonious relations will result.

The Norfolk and Western Railway, for the most part, is not located in an industrial section. There was therefore a large labor turnover before a regular, competent working force was secured. This involved extra cost, which reduced net revenue materially in the last few months of the year.

Settlement With Government
No settlement has been made with the United States Government for the Federal Control and Guaranty Periods and no payments have been made by the Government on either account during the year. It is expected that settlements for both periods will be reached during the year 1923, but no close estimate can be made of the amounts which will be received.

Operating Results

Effective July 1st, 1922, a reduction of ten per cent in freight rates was ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which was reflected in the earnings of the last half of the year. Notwithstanding these reduced rates, total railway operating revenues for the year were $20,352,887.49, the largest in the history of the Company, and $20,311,082.01, or 11.24 per cent in excess of 1921. This increase was in large measure due to the heavy coal movement in the early months of the year, resulting from the strike in the unionized bituminous coal fields, the mines on your Company's line being in continuous operation.

The tonnage of revenue coal carried in this year increased 65,177 tons or 21.15 per cent, and other revenue freight showed an increase of 1,221,359 tons, or 16.75 per cent. Revenue passengers decreased 48,417 or 7.37

SUNDAY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

Yesterday the Bible school attendance reached a total of 8579 an increase of 828 over the Sunday previous and only 189 below the average for the month set by the Sabbath school superintendents. Several schools are working towards big goals and their efforts are meeting with much success. First Baptist moved into second place and United Brethren into third position yesterday with both schools over the 700 mark. Several have more than met the average set for them, while others have fallen short by a close margin.

per cent and the average haul of passengers decreased 3.28 per cent.

Operating expenses, which had been held down to a ratio of 67.07 per cent in the first six months, were greatly increased in the closing months of the year largely as a consequence of the shopmen's strike, and this despite the reductions in wages authorized by the United States Labor Board; they reached a ratio of 83.88 per cent for the six months July to December, inclusive. Mainly from this cause operating expenses for the year increased from $4,246,877.10 in 1921 to $6,856,803.52 in 1922 or 5.76 per cent. The net income from railway operations, $22,300,083.67, was a gain of $3,028,138.02 or 36.21 per cent over the corresponding figures for 1921.

YOU need only 8½ gallons of Certain-teed Outside White to paint a spacious home like this (40' x 32'). That means less than $31 for the paint. There is nothing more artistic than a nicely painted, white house in its setting of green lawn and shrubbery. When it takes so little paint to keep a fine home like this fresh and new, it is a pity to put off painting. Whatever the color let us show you the choice rich shades to be had in Certain-teed outside paint.

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Dolly—Now that nice days and house cleaning time will soon be upon us, don't you think it would be a good idea for all concerned if some authority would start a city-wide clean-up campaign. I'm particularly interested in the dirty alleys, which are a disgrace to our fair city. There is a city ordinance which says people must have closed garbage cans, yet there are hundreds of alleys in this town who don't know that a closed garbage can looks like a trash can. They throw their trash, papers, boxes, broken garbage, and everything else they have about the house out in the alleys—sometimes in the middle of the alleys to stop the drainage, and sometimes never a word said about it. They don't throw it promiscuously, as you scattered to the four winds on the earth by rag pickers, dogs, or people who make a business of going through alleys and rooting through garbage. Why are some people so much more to obey the laws on the statute books while others go on violating them? Why can't everyone have a covered garbage can and be made to keep it inside their yard when possible? Why are some people allowed to litter the alleys with everything under the sun in a respectable neighborhood where others are trying to keep it clean? There are inspectors for most every other thing, and I see no reason why we should not have an alley inspector. If the city has no money for this I think there are men and women in the city who would be willing to serve in their wards or blocks without pay if they were given the authority to make people keep their premises clean. I see where the chiefs of the city are trying to beautify Scioto Trail, and that is as it should be, but I think they are doing more for themselves and the city if they would start a campaign to beautify the alleys in Portsmouth. I would like to hear what others have to say on this subject.

PROGRESSIVE CITIZEN.
When they start out cleaning up the alleys I suggest that they do something to keep careless people from scattering old papers over streets, sidewalks and lawns. It might be a good idea to place paper containers on certain corners like they have in nearly every city in the country. Of course these would not do any good unless the people were forced to use them.

Dear Dolly—What do you think of a couple who stopped their limousine in front of a respectable home and deliberately picked up a little pet dog belonging to the small son of the household and drove off with it. The child had to go to the woman's house and cry and beg for it before she would give it back to him. The woman has a police court record and if anyone wants to know the name of the man she was with, I will tell them. I don't imagine he would like to see his name in print. Dolly, I'll give you his name and you can do as you please about putting it in the paper. I am going to send you the name of every man I see with this woman. She doesn't know me, but I have her number and also that of her friends.

OBSERVING READER.
If you find out anything pass the word along to the Chief of Police or the grand jury, instead of sending it to me. As for the dog, I would not have let the child go after it. The father and mother should have gone and taken a policeman with them. Stealing a dog is just like stealing anything else and the couple should be dealt with accordingly.

Miss Dolly Wise—Please answer the following questions: "A. is in the Army. B. is visiting A. The lieutenant ask A. 'Who is this man?' meaning B. A. replies 'That man's father is my father's son.' What relation is A. and B."

A. WALKER.
A. would be an uncle to B.

Dear Dolly—I am a young married woman and I love my husband, but I can't make him believe that. He says I don't love him, and that I like other men, and treat them better than I do him. As I keep bothering to help make a living I want you to tell me how I can make him believe I really like him. I think lots of my home and baby but he seems to be dissatisfied. What can I do about it?

BLUE EYES.
If you want to keep peace in your family I would advise you to get rid of your boarders and devote your time to your husband and your baby. If you keep boarders, you will have to give them a certain amount of attention, and naturally your husband will be jealous and imagine you are treating them nicer than you do him.

Dear Dolly—I am a man 82 years of age, and no doubt one of your oldest readers. I read in the paper not long ago where some reader asked you when to trim grape vines and since I have had considerable experience along that line I thought I would tell you about it. I always found the light of the moon the best time to trim vines or anything else, and also a good time to plant things.

INTERESTED READER.
THE GOAT—The only way you could find out is to write to the clerk of courts in the county, you think he obtained the decree. You might trace his whereabouts for the time specified through some of his friends and relatives, and if you had a list of the cities, it would be an easy matter to write to the different counties and get the desired information. If you can't find out, I suppose you will just have to tell the truth about the matter, or say you are in doubt and let it go at that.

Adventures Of The Twins

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha," laughed a voice. Nancy and Nick on their way to the Cut-Out Lady's house in Sugar-Plum Land, looked all around to see where the voice came from.

"Here I am! Right over you. If I were as big as a church and as heavy as a cannon and lost my balance, I'd fall right on top of you and smash you."

The twins jumped. Looking up they saw a peanut pull-parrot with tissue-paper feathers with as many colors as a giraffe's dress. He stood on a pipe-cleaner perch and had pipe-cleaner legs and pipe-cleaner feet with which to hold on to his pipe-cleaner perch.

"Hello!" said Nancy. "Hello, yourself!" said the peanut pull-parrot. "Are you a Sugar-Plum Land?"

"No!" Nick told him. "We are only on adventures."

"That's fine!" said the parrot. "Then I know you have some brains. Most of the people here have no brains at all. And for goodness sake don't offer me a cracker. I hate crackers. I'm crackly enough as it is. Why do you me a favor?"

"Certainly," said Nancy obligingly. "Then take this raisin to the lemon cookie canary who lives over there in that paper-bag house, will you? She lost her raisin eye and now she can't see how gorgeous I am."

"Oh, yes, indeed!" promised Nancy, holding out her hand.

But the peanut parrot couldn't find the raisin. He hopped down off his perch and looked everywhere. "I hid it behind this rock-cookie," he screamed, "and now it's gone."

When the little sweetmeat shouted "ten," Jack opened his eyes. Lo and behold, all the scenery had changed. Phil was still at Jack's side, but in the place of the trees and green grass, there was just a huge white box with a big door in it, standing directly in front of them. (Continued)

Sunday Biggest Day In Crusade; Dr. Anderson Fearless, Says Sheridan

But don't think Dr. Anderson spent all his time in story telling. No sooner would he make his point by the cracking of a mighty high-class joke, than he would go off on another tangent and grip those people in a steel vice. For he talked on the subject, "The Man That Came Back," and he painted pictures with glowing, glistening colors of language that showed life in its truest sense. He don't mince words when he speaks and an idle thought never enters his mind. He is here to do a certain work and as the interest mounts higher and higher he is charging with more vigor and he promises some stirring scenes in that big garage before the crusade comes to an official close on next Sunday night. There were many faint-hearted men and women who feared the tuberculee was entirely too large—that the people who attended would be lost in the immensity of space. Now those people who have been led up on the mountain top of experience and fervor are only sorry that the place is not twice as large. Dr. Anderson and his matchless eloquence, his truth laden messages, his zeal and earnestness—a man of clean life, a crusader who is as fearless as he is brave—that, (tells the story)—that and the wonderful assistance that is being given him by his experts and the religious leaders of the community. There you have it, flanked with the amens and hallelujahs of those who have decided to lead lives that count, not only in this world, but in the world that lies just beyond. You couldn't beat the combination if you hunted the world over, could he it said that those citizens, Dr. Anderson and his party expect to visit are due for an awakening that will shake them from center to circumference. Dr. Anderson has made men and women feel that while life has its pitfalls, while there are thorns and thistles all along the way, that anyone who has the right kind of stuff can make the grade. The people of Portsmouth are in for a great week—make no mistake about that.

And that the people who are vitally interested in the campaign hold their visitors in the highest respect and love was shown last night, when General Chairman John T. Brown on behalf of the committee, presented Dr. and Mrs. Anderson with a handsome basket of choice American Beauty roses. Yes, and glory be, I have a couple of those sweet-scented roses at home—and I'll be a dollar the committee don't begrudge him them, either. Well, it is eleven o'clock, folks, and I'm going to beat it for home. I'm tired, too, but as happy as a king—and my, the fragrance of those roses—whoo!

The weather couldn't be beat. "Silverliver's," that peculiar affliction of recent years, is epidemic. Sunday afternoon, Mike and I drove north through a smog from front row. More sun through skylight. Sign of spring. L'orthsum's Gospel Quartet—male. Evening. Looks as if everybody was trying to get into tabernacle. Overflow to First Baptist. Replicas of tabernacle meeting—presenters, Mrs. Anderson, Auvergn, beauty, roses. Manly quartet. "He'll never let roomy hand. Folks asked to 'sit tight.' Third make a sardine. 'Admitted already young people make up large part crowd. Girl yawning. Sleepy or interested? Jenkins has a story. A gun chewer is always noticeable. Sign standing around wall. All windows open. Delegation from Siloam. Did not come. 'I'll be back. You can relax, relaxing moments, the audience seems to follow the speaker more closely each service."

the most hopeful quality in Peter was his willingness to try again. No man in Bible history made so many blunders as Simon Peter. No man ever got up so quickly. He possessed the rebounding qualities of a rubber ball and with the same speed with which he fell he would rise again. Thus he came victoriously out of defeat. He came out of failure instead of failure. In the grave in which he buried himself became a stepping-stone toward the heights here. Through his resolute determination to conquer this weakness, Peter climbs out of the darkness of the valley into the light of holiness.

With these two questions, the incidents before him were three. The first, which I have mentioned before, three stepping-stones toward greatness. There was his experience upon the sea when in a time of storm he clung to the side of the boat, calling out in helpless terror, "Lord, make of me a fisher, for I have feared thee." The second, which I have mentioned before, was his willingness to ever venture on the sea again, but this is exactly what Peter would do. When Christ bade His disciples start across the sea all alone while He went up into the mountains to pray, Peter embarked with a glad heart and most trusting confidence. He was the first to be pushed from the shore toward the land of the Gadenites. He did what you and I in our cowardice might not have done. So when the storm came up that night and the boat was again tossed with the storm and the ocean and the heavy seas, Peter was the first to say, "Lord, I will venture." When at last they saw Jesus making His way over the waves and through the billows and the deep troughs of the sea, Peter from the mountain top, called out to him in the valley place with Peter and the other disciples, "Come up hither, and I will tell thee of all things which thou shalt do." He went forth to meet the needs, and when at last they thronged him into prison, Peter went with the countenance of Christ. They bound him with chains. They fastened him to the arms of soldiers, and he said to the next man, "If thou wilt save my life, help me to get down between these two tiers with the same confidence with which Jesus had stretched out weary form on the soft grass on Mount of Olives when He wanted sleep.

That night an angel came to him and touching his shoulder said, "Peter, stretch up thine hand." He heard with a smile and said, "I am not afraid." As he spoke, his shackles fell from his hands and he struck with a loud report on the floor.

He was not afraid and he was not because the angel was at his side. Rising, he walked past the sleeping guards and through the corridors, and he must be stood at the great iron door with his huge hinges and massive was ready to climb over the rugged side of the boat and plunge head first, upon the water, rather than walk to the shore.

"Christ, I can see him now climbing down, as he holds to the side of the ship, testing with his feet one of the restless waves, and as he puts his foot upon it, it becomes as collesbentane and he sinks." "But," he said, "I have seen Christ I see that there is a possibility for every coward to succeed if only he has the spirit to try again."

Here he, in Pilate's hall, cursing, swearing, denying Christ and rushing out into the darkness, even after he had seen such kind things about him. We say that this is human nature at its worst, and upon such a man can no one place confidence or respect, and yet he tried again. When at last he came to the shore after his long and fruitless trial, he heard the voice of the man who had been looking no man with his strength could more. As he was about to step forward it was as if his heart for the action of God was broken. As he approached the shore, the iron gate it opened of its own accord.

You cannot stop a man when he has within his soul the passion for love for man, when once he sees the wrongs of modern life, when he has seen the things in the worst of men that need and that is the God of Jesus Christ. And if he is called to preach that gospel, you cannot stop him. He will go and he will come back.

At last his Journey was over. He had seen that there was no man trembling with Peter in hour of death than there was Paul, the stolid.

Standing on one of the hills overlooking the great city of Rome, the dome of St. Peter's, that man out of the boat and swam with the strength of a Hercules against the waves, and reaching the shallow water, waded toward the shore that he might fall down once more before his Lord and Savior. When Jesus said, "Tarry for a while and pray," Peter hurried and prayed, "Lord, let the virgin come and that for which I have been struggling for years has been realized. He was out of the valley of fear and cowardice, never to enter it again. Through many years of suffering and sorrow, with bleeding hands, bewildered brain and aching heart, he had made his journey upward and now at last he stood upon the sun-kissed heights of heroism with soul at ease and heart filled with the power of the Holy Spirit and forehead illumined by a tongue of fire that gave him an unthoughtful confidence that divested him of sympathy. Standing there in the presence of men upon whose hands was the blood of Jesus Christ, he fearlessly called them coward and preached the possibilities of a risen Christ until in one day's time three thousand people became followers of his Lord. The message of this hour is a message of encouragement. There is no sin in being afraid. By nature we are all cowards. There are name and the fact that awful fear that ing at our hearts as well as keeps us from being what we long to be or doing what we know is right. But being afraid is no sin.

I have been closely associated with only American soldiers of the World War, in both the front line trenches and on the field of battle. I have seen men who were dying among the enemy's lines, neither have I known one of them but that was frightened in the presence of danger. You cannot hear one of those German shells coming over to pay its respects without being scared. It is not being afraid that is sin, but it is yielding to fear and refusing to yield to a few less sin.
True heroism is the refusing up of the mountain is the doing of the thing we do not like to do.

Hair Often Ruined
By Careless Washing

Soup should be used very carefully. If you want to keep your hair looking its best, many soups and prepared cereals contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it. The best thing for steady use is Mulsified coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless) and is better than anything else you can use. Two or three tablespoons of Mulsified in a cup of water with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub the Mulsified in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage. You can get Mulsified coconut oil shampoo at any pharmacy. It is very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. — Advertisement.

LARGE CROWD AT ALLEN CHAPEL

Evangelist Harper delivered another strong sermon last night to a large audience in Allen Chapel. His subject was, "The Ocean of Time." "There are man made ships that are not strong enough for the ocean of time. They founder," the speaker said. "There is one ship that will carry you safely. It is the old gospel ship. It is in Portsmouth tonight. Will you get on?"

SIKI BEATEN, RETAINS TITLE

PARIS, March 19.—No world championship was involved in the Siki-McTigue fight at Dublin last Saturday night according to Albert Bourdariat, vice president of the French boxing federation, in a statement to L'Auto.

In the first place, the official said, the rules require that the adversary of a champion must challenge formally, which McTigue never did. Secondly, the referee must be appointed by the International boxing union. This condition also was unfulfilled.

M. Bourdariat concluded that Siki may have been beaten by McTigue, but that he cannot lose his title of light heavyweight champion, because the fight was not for the title.

trouble.

Poock came into prominence in 1897 when he identified the make of shoes worn by Pearl Bryan, whose headless body was found back of Newport, Ky., and which subsequently led to the arrest, conviction and execution of Scott Jackson and Alonzo Walling for the murder of the girl.

Means of identifying the body of Pearl Bryan was established from the fact that the shoes she had on when murdered were made in the Sellars shoe plant here. The lot number was visible and it was soon learned that the shoes had been sold to Poock and this proved to be the clue that ultimately revealed the identity of Pearl Bryan.

Buy That Dog License Or Beware

Sheriff Harry Dunham and his deputies launched a special drive Monday against tagless dogs and their owners who have refused and neglected despite frequent warnings to comply with the law by purchasing licenses for their pets.

The sheriff has received information that certain persons in various parts of the county have and are still boasting of their ability to escape complying with the provisions of the dog law while their neighbors have bought tags, and these offenders are to be made the target of the campaign just inaugurated. The sheriff is determined that all dogs shall be tagged and is planning to start prosecutions to attain that end, if necessary.

Passengers Hurt When Bus Rolls Down Bank

One passenger Charles Potts, of South Webster, was seriously bruised, four other passengers were slightly bruised and shaken up and Vernon Bratton, driver of the machine was bruised when the South Webster bus left the road on Allegheny Hill and rolled about 190 feet down an embankment several days ago. The driver stopped the bus on the hill road to let a passenger off and when the brakes failed to hold the machine started back down the road and went down the embankment on the left hand side. The bus was making the return trip to South Webster in the afternoon and had five men as passengers.

J. W. Bratton, of South Webster who operates the bus line was also in the machine. Vernon Bratton who was driving is his son. The driver was injured when an ice cream freezer fell on him. The bus was badly damaged as it turned over twice after leaving the road. It has again been put in running order but has not resumed its regular schedule to Portsmouth.

Charles Potts, who was injured was formerly a B. & O. operator at Webster and some weeks ago had an arm amputated in a local hospital.

Bar Many Shady Stocks

COLUMBUS, O., March 19.—(By the Associated Press)—Disposal of $91,400,500 stock in companies which have not satisfied the state blue sky department as to their status, has been prevented by the work of the department since February 1, according to a statement made to Governor Donahay today by Director of Commerce Cyrus Locher.

From February 1 until March 15, Mr. Locher told the governor permits had been revoked and stock sales stopped in 59 corporations and that in the same period certificates for the sale of stock in 11 corporations had been refused.

In addition, 4,074,742 shares of non-par stock were affected by the orders of the commission, Locher said. He estimated the total value of stock affected at more than $100,000,000. Locher said the number of purely promotional schemes uncharted is "astounding." Many companies, he said, have been organized by brokers and promoters whose sole purpose seemed to be "to make money out of the promotion of the company and not out of the business itself."

"Getting Gertie's Garter" At The Sun

It's really marvelous all the fun and laughter that can be gotten from just the hint of so small a thing as a garter. The entire plot of "Getting Gertie's Garter" the sensational Al Woods riotous farce comedy, which opens tonight at the Sun, hinges upon the hunt for a garter. You little realize all the trouble, scandal, and mix-ups that one little thing as a garter can get everyone into. New York, and Chicago papers devoted as much space as full pages in reviews of the Al Woods comedy. In every city of the land where it has been played, "Getting Gertie's Garter" starts a rush at the box office for seats. After the first neighbors see it they leave the theater talking about it. Here in Portsmouth there are going to be a limited number able to witness the production, owing to the small seating capacity of the Sun. Seats are selling fast and there are some who will not get in unless quick action is taken to reserve your tickets.

The play is being mounted with some very elaborate stage settings and the outlook for the first three days of this week at the Sun, is that it will be the center of the amusement attractions. A bargain matinee is given tomorrow at 2:30 p. m.

Desertion Of Republican Party Chiefs Led To Announcement Of Harding's Candidacy For Renomination, Says Hull

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(By the United Press)—Doubt concerning President Harding's ability to secure re-nomination in 1924, prompted Attorney General Daugherty to make an early start in the campaign to re-nominate and re-elect Mr. Harding. Cordell Hull, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, declared in a formal statement today.

Hull declared the Conservatives as well as the Progressives of the Republican party long ago realized that Mr. Harding could not be re-elected, and began to look for another candidate.

Harding's supporters, who, Hull said, were largely the office-holding and office-seeking classes, realized something had to be done to revive interest in the president, if he was to be re-nominated.

In order to suppress party leaders who are rapidly deserting Harding's cause in search of another candidate, Daugherty announced the president's candidacy and arranged for a speech-making tour of the west, in hopes of living it up with his eastern supporters.

Hull characterized Attorney General Daugherty's announcement of President Harding's candidacy for a second term as one which will have "little or no effect upon the national political situation in either party." Chairman Hull of the Democratic national committee, issued the following statement:

"The semi-official announcement by Attorney General Daugherty that President Harding will be a candidate for re-nomination, is small interest as news compared with the reasons for making the announcement at this time.

"If President Harding had only risen to the level of an ordinary president, it would be taken for granted that the party would re-nominate him. The doubt concerning his re-nomination has been raised by the fact that his administration to date has been the most conspicuous failure of any in the twenty-nine national administrations. With this fact confronting them, the progressive element in the Republican party as well as conservatives of sound political judgment long ago realized that Mr. Harding could not be re-elected and began to look for another candidate. The failure of the Harding administration was demonstrated and emphasized by the repudiation given it at the polls last November.

"The reactionary supporters of the president, largely confined to the office holding and office-seeking classes, evidently realized that if Mr. Harding was to be re-nominated, something would have to be done to revive interest in him which was fast waning and also to suppress these party leaders who are rapidly deserting the Harding cause in search of another candidate. Hence, the announcement of the Harding candidacy by the president's closest personal friend and most influential political adviser, Attorney General Daugherty. Hence, too, the president's announced purpose of making a speech-making tour of the country.

"The announcement of Attorney General Daugherty will have little or no effect upon the national political situation in either party. One of the outstanding issues in the 1924 campaign will be the record of omission and commission of the Harding administration whether Mr. Harding leads the flock or not. On this issue the Democratic party is ready now to go to bat."

The president was given an ovation as he boarded the house boat Pioneer today. The crowd yelled, "1924."

Laughingly, the president replied, "I have two very busy years ahead of me. There is no hurry about 1924. Besides we came here for recreation and both Mrs. Harding and I have been benefited."

AFTER FIFTY YEARS

It is Usually too Late for the Prophet to Help

When the boy living on a farm gets up before sunrise in the cold, lights the kitchen fire, puts the oat meal on the stove, milks the cow, feeds the hens and does other chores, he is having the simplest, sweetest time that he will ever have in this complex life of ours, but he will not find it out until he has had fifty years experience.

This leads to the simplicity of buying shoes and fitting feet. Lots of men think because they pay ten dollars for shoes they are getting ten dollar values. Some argument. About as much chance as a "Lizzie" beating a Pierce-Arrow in a race. Get wise, buy real calf oxfords and not imitation.

Vision Or Industry

Much is being said now-a-day about having visions of the future and working toward their fulfillment. "Aim at a star" no doubt, is good advice, but we can't help but wonder how many of the present successes have been brought about by their promoters working from day to day giving their toil and service to humanity in the best way they knew how, never picturing their ultimate success, never thinking of how large their business might be some day.

We sometimes doubt if Mr. G. W. Anderson, the founder of the Anderson store way back in 1874, ever thought that his efforts would materialize into a store of the present magnitude. We rather believe his day-to-day efforts followed conscientiously his determination to give service, kind treatment and value received; that he hewed close to the line of reliability, letting the chips fall where they may. With this in view it would indeed prove us to be disloyal should we ever depart from the plan that has so won the confidence of a large clientele.

Now Fashion places before your eyes the perfected styles which once and for all clear away every bit of mystery as to what women will wear for Easter and Spring. The secret of hemline and sleeve is openly told. Whether the Fashion-world is to go color-wild or no now becomes known. And what Egypt, or China, or Persia, or France had to do with the creation of this new world of Style is made plain as day.

To Look More Youthful

The modern corset doesn't aim to make us all over, so we look all alike, as the old-fashioned corset did.

It doesn't aim to give us that objectionable corseted look.

It just coaxes, restrains, redistributes us a little—makes us longer waisted, taller and a bit more slender. It gives us that graceful ease of movement which can only come with genuine comfort.

Gossard Type Corsetry

insures each of us looking our individual best, always. Our corsetieres can tell you some interesting things about this new beauty aid.

other side of the passage.

"Mr. Youngblood will see you, madam," he announced.

The door was closed behind me, and I shook hands with a tall, elderly man who rose to welcome me in a somewhat abstracted fashion. He was untidy but professionally dressed. He wore old-fashioned steel-rimmed spectacles, resting at the present moment on his forehead. The shape of his collar and the fashion of his tie belonged to a bygone generation. There were rows of tin boxes extending to the ceiling, a library of law books, and his table was littered with papers.

"Mrs.—er—Morrison?" he began, using the name by which I had been known during the last few months.

"That is more or less my name," I admitted. "I received a telephone message asking me to call this afternoon."

"Quite so, quite so," he murmured a little vaguely. "Now let me see." He went on looking among some papers. "Your husband appears to have been a client of the firm for many years, but my memory—oh, here we are," he broke off, drawing a slip of paper toward him. "My instructions, cabled from New York, were to hand you the sum of two hundred pounds. You received that amount, I believe?"

"I received it and have spent the greater part of it," I replied.

His expression became a little less benign.

"Dear me!" he exclaimed. "That sounds rather extravagant."

He scratched his upper lip thoughtfully.

"GOOD MORNING, SIR NORMAN," I SAID, HOLDING OUT MY HAND. "ARE THERE NO MORE CRIMINALS LEFT?"

"Your husband has, I gather, been engaged in operations in New York of a delicate nature. The world of finance has always its secrets. He appears now, however, to have brought his operations to a close. You are aware, perhaps, that he has landed in England?"

My heart gave a little jump. I could not tell whether the separation I experienced had more in it of joy or of fear.

"Is he safe?" I asked.

"Safe?" Mr. Youngblood repeated a little vaguely. "Why not?"

There was a moment's silence. I looked around at the shabby but imposing contents of the office, at the lawyer's mildly puzzled expression, I drank in the whole atmosphere of the place, and I was dumb. Mr. Youngblood suddenly smiled, and tapped with his forefinger upon the table. He was like a man who has suddenly seen through a family phrase in some legal document.

"I apprehend you," he said. "For a moment I was not altogether able to appreciate the significance of your question. New York is a curious place, and I understand—or that the financial operations in which your husband has been concerned, although profitable, may have made him enemies. He traveled back to England, indeed, under an assumed name. Let me see—I have it somewhere." He went on fumbling once more among a mass of papers.

"I had it in my hand only a few minutes ago. . . . Here we are—Mr. Edmund Peters. I am instructed to say, madam, that your husband would welcome a call from you."

"You have his address?"

"Yes, his address," he repeated. "Precisely. I have it here—Number Eleven, Jackson Street."

"Mayfair?" I inquired.

"Mayfair," he assented. "The address reminds me, madam, he went on, "that you must be prepared to see your husband—not in the best of health. He is, in fact, in a nursing home."

"Is he seriously ill?" I asked.

"I believe not," was the deliberate reply. "You will have an opportunity of judging for yourself within half an hour. I am to ask you to visit him as soon as you can find it convenient."

I sat quite still. I was trying to get these matters into my mind. The lawyer glanced at his watch and immediately struck the bell in front of him.

"You will forgive me, madam," he said, rising to his feet. "I have a meeting of the Law Society to attend. My compliments to your husband. Tell him to let me know if I can be of further notice to him."

THE boy was holding open the door. The lawyer, with a courteous old-fashioned bow, evidently considered the interview at an end. I went back to my taxi, a little bewildered, and drove at once to Jackson Street. A nurse in starched linen frock and flowing cap consulted a little slate and led me to a bedroom in one of the upper stories.

"Mr. Peters is getting on famously, madam," he announced encouragingly. "The doctor hopes to be able to let him out at the end of the week. Please step in. You can stay as long as you like. . . . Your wife is here, Mr. Peters," she went on, ushering me through the doorway.

Does Golf Hurt Ball Players?

Is golf a good thing for major league ball players? The leading golf professionals of the country are undecided about it.

Some day they don't find a certain amount of golf during the season will hurt a ball player's batting. They do admit that it is possible for a ball player to overgo.

Others are inclined to believe that golfing has a tendency to throw a batter off his stride, particularly if he plays very much during the season.

The swing in golf and baseball is in striking contrast. An entirely different set of muscles is brought into play. So different is the swing that a ball player often finds trouble in developing accuracy as a golfer.

On one thing the professionals are a unite, and that is, that 18 holes of golf on a hot summer morning is bound to take some of the "pop" out of the player for the afternoon ball game.

All of which makes it seem that golf has some advantages and as many disadvantages relative to the major league star.

Indians In Shape

The Cleveland Indians look to be in great shape this spring. The pitchers are already in mid-season form and if they hold up the Spunkies will be contenders in the American League.

Playing Managers Are Getting Quite Scarce In American League

The playing manager will soon be a thing of the past in the American League, unless some star athlete is shortly appointed leader of one of the eight clubs.

At the present time five clubs have bench managers. Chance at Boston, Mack at Philadelphia, Poll at St. Louis, Gleason at Chicago and Huggins at New York.

Three of the clubs still have playing managers. Ty Cobb at Detroit, Tris Speaker at Cleveland and Donie Bush at Washington. Really only Cobb and Speaker can be rated as playing managers as Bush has announced that he will merely essay utility roles.

Cobb and Speaker cannot go on forever. Speaker had much trouble with his legs last season and it not going to be any better this year. Cobb is also beginning to feel the ravages of time.

Only recently Cobb announced that he intended to carry five outfielders, all capable of playing regularly. That means that he intends to be fortified should his legs give him trouble.

With the exception of Mack, all the American League managers will sport uniforms and appear on the coaching lines.

MAPLE SAP IS FLOWING

PICTURES of goats in saloon windows, once a sign that Spring was nigh, are no more to be seen. Robins and bluebirds, are not infallible harbingers, this year at least, because they have been observed at intervals all winter. In the rural regions of the East, however, there is to be found another index to the season which points out unmistakably that the sun, as the astronomers would say, is approaching the sign of Aries.

If Rip Van Winkle, after sleeping for 20 years, were to awake now and find himself in any Eastern state, he would need no calendar to inform him that the vernal period is near—that is, if Rip knew anything about maple sugar—for he would see the sap running into buckets from thousands of trees in groves and even alongside roads and village streets. The maples, earliest of the trees to blossom, know that the time draws near for them to put forth their yellowish green flowers. And the sap flows vigorously in preparation.

Maple sugar is not an important farm product as compared, say, with wheat, potatoes, milk or eggs, but it is not to be despised; and there is an interest attached to the manner of gathering the sap and the making of the sugar and syrup which is independent of the money involved. Tractors are supplanting horses; machinery is doing much of the agricultural work that once was done by hand; but in the "sugar bush" virtually the same methods are followed now as in pioneer days. The boy who left the farm years ago to go to the city and who returns to his old home will find many changes; but the scenes to be observed in the maple groves are about the same as they were in his childhood. And so the spring activity in the "sugar bush" has a sentimental appeal.

Insignificant as maple sugar production is when compared with that of cane or beet sugar, it is not commercially negligible. The world needs all the sweets that it can get, for there has developed an extraordinary appetite for saccharin foods in many countries. Americans will eat a billion dollars worth of confectionery this year. The price of sugar is rising on account of the inordinate demand. A heavy yield of maple sugar and syrup will help to appease the cravings of our sweet tooth.

BIGOTRY RAMPANT

It seems that bigotry—religious, political and all other varieties—is becoming more and more obtrusive and intrusive. Bigotry has always played the tyrant whenever it had the power, but lately it has taken on new activity.

There is no limit that bigotry recognizes—when it is on a rampage. Those without knowledge of certain subjects do not hesitate to proclaim the opinions of experts as wholly untrue. Those who hold to literal construction of the Bible do not hesitate to condemn scientists who champion scientific truths that seem to conflict with biblical stories.

In politics bigotry shows inclination toward equally violent autocracy. Let one of the opposition advance a proposition, and instantly bigoted partisans pronounce it unsound—not because it analyzes unsatisfactorily, but simply because it is fathered by one in the opposing camp.

So the story of bigotry runs. It has already been permitted to run too long. It is high time that the tolerance of which the nation boasts should assert itself against the increasing rancor of bigotry.

Russia, the dissolute, must in time expect dissolution.

Not always the supply, but the price ever is equal to the demand.

Next year is leap year, girls. Better plan now to do your popping early.

The average neighbor is usually able to tell the difference between a social caller and a bill collector.

Cuno, says a new item, presents no ultimatum. Then he is not ready to submit. An ultimatum is indication of readiness to make concessions.

The man who wants more than his share of the bed covering at night is probably the same road hog who in the daytime wants all of the road bed.

Mexico is trying to stop gambling. Probably it is the hope to make holding the presidency something more than a sporting chance on completing the term.

Women are an unfortunate lot generally. No matter what their station in life, or how many changes of gowns they possess, they never have anything "fit to wear."

New York-Day-By-Day

BY O. O. McINTIRE

NEW YORK, March 19.—A page from the diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: Early up and pondered at my image in the mirror and Lord! the lines and wrinkles. My wife, poor wretch, and I to breakfast with Carol McComas, the play actress, and thence to a dress-maker's place.

Bought this day a new shelf for books, but find most of my volumes loaned and not returned albeit I, too, rarely return a borrowed book, which is none the less thievery. To my hatter and picked a cinnamon colored headgear, very noble.

Home all the afternoon, where came Bert L. Standish, the writer, and we talked of days when he wrote Frank Merriwell novels, and mighty brave they were, too. Came also Frisco, the dancer, as merry a wag as I have seen in a fortnight.

In the evening to Mistress Justice's and to dine at The Old Crow on a juicy sirloin and did eat more than my fill, but merry and bright withal. Walked home in the moonshine, my poor head full of fine thoughts of work I shall not do. So to bed.

The sanest play in town deals with an unmentionable subject. At this writing it has not aroused police ire. No one seems to understand just exactly why it hasn't. At times the lines and action are so guttural that the other night a man arose in the audience and berated the players. It was learned afterward that at one time he was arrested for conducting a notorious fence on Third Avenue. To such depths has our poor drama fallen!

The greatest rendezvous for hardened habitués of the underworld in New York is a Turkish bath-house. It is the midnight haven for dope peddlers, gunmen, counterfeiters and men who live off women.

No one is permitted inside who is not known to all of the three look-outs who stand in the entrance. The streetwise of detectives have tried time after time to break through the cordon, but the only way they can enter is by the raiding ram.

It is said to be the only spot in town where the criminal releases his vigilance and becomes garrulously off guard. He feels it is one place where he can boast of his crimes. The management of the baths does not permit anything stronger than tea to be served. They know that a glass of rum may inflame old jealousies and perhaps end in murder.

There is another place—a porcelain plated cafeteria that is the hang-out for pickpockets just as the side street canopy of an uptown theatre used to be the meeting place for Times Square drug addicts. The place shattered my illusion about pickpockets. I have pictured them as weasel faced, skulking types. Those pointed out as pickpockets to me were mostly rosy-cheeked boys between 19 and 24. They appeared more like a healthy lot of shipping clerks that one sees along the warehouses of the water front.

We might as well polish off the days offering with more observations about crooks. It is said the screwdriver "leather lifter" in Manhattan is a girl. She is an artist by profession and has a studio in Greenwich Village. She has become skilled in lifting a wallet, removing the valuable contents and then replacing it. In this fashion the victim is often doubtful as to whether or not his pocket has been picked.
